

How to Build a Sustainable Career: Strategies for Baby Boomers as well as Generations X, Y, and Z: Hear from our expert panelists who will give their points of view and interact (taking questions) with the audience

In Heidrick & Struggles' Global Talent Index findings, "Generation Y – those born between 1977 and 2005 – will have had an average of fourteen jobs by the time they are 38". Despite the differences among how these generations of employees define their ideal work situations, it remains that the four cohorts desire career opportunities that enable them to participate in meaningful work and have resources that will help them excel. Given the changes of fortune for different industries within the Greater Philadelphia region, please join us on October 18th to learn how you can better navigate your career journey, regardless if you are actively searching or not.
